

GRASS SHOOTS IN SIGHT...

4th Annual Captive Seminar
Four Seasons Hotel, Dublin
Thursday 25th June 2009

What is your strategy
in an upturn?

Programme :

08.30 a.m	Welcome Coffee & Registration
09.00 a.m	Opening remarks from Chairman.
09.10 a.m	The importance of contingency planning before forming a captive. Whether the idea is still under consideration and up to the actual implementation, it is useful to stress the various options available. It is crucial that a comprehensive feasibility study is conducted at consideration stage and moreover using different economic conditions. An option of an exit strategy within the study makes the process less risky, should the initial thought change.
09.35 a.m	Captive Management - is it wise to take cheaper price options and sacrifice quality? One has to evaluate what services they are getting and at what price in the long term. Cutting down costs does not mean diluting the quality of service.
10.00 a.m	Reinsurance for captives is considered the main key for success. Right at implementation stage of a captive reinsurance programme it is vital to use quantitative methodologies to evaluate your data. Equally important is the method used to compile this data.
10.25 a.m	Coffee Break
11.00 a.m	Reinsurance for captives continues How to avoid anticipated coverage and collection disputes in captive reinsurance.
11.25 a.m	Rethink the way to do business! Examining wisely investment and banking relationships to maximise a captive's ability to pay claims, always, even in difficult times.
11.50 a.m	Be in command of your fate by exploring cell companies The purpose of a cellular structure is to segregate and protect the cellular assets of the company. APCC structure enables promoters to share overhead costs with other promoters without losing protection from the insolvency of others. This offers entities the flexibility to enter captive insurance markets for which it was previously uneconomic to do so.
12.15 a.m	Captive insurance is not only for large businesses but many SME's are realising how they can benefit as well.
12.40 a.m	Question Time
12.50 a.m	Closing Address
13.00	Networking Lunch
